PADUCAH, Ky., Aug. 22.——A—Some folk around Paducah don't envy Southern Ohio residents. They're still having repercussions from the government's decision to put up an atomic energy plant near Paducah. Back in early 1951, when the Atomic Energy Commission announced that little Grahamville, 18 miles from here, has been selected as the site for a gaseous diffusion plant, a chain-like reaction began.

Those who had been spending their time playing around with the big catfish in the Ohio River suddenly became prosperous with new construction employment. Farmers who had been using mules for years to plow their soil sold them for dog meat and bought new tractors. If things go in Southern Ohio like they did here, the current wave of excitement will be followed by job seekers, promoters, speculators, drifters, gamblers, prostitutes and assorted other types, some good, some bad. If the Ohio pattern follows Paducah's, you'll see, within a 50-mile radius of Waverly: Soda counter help leave their stands for jobs at the atom plant, household help get work as store clerks and store clerks become atomic workers. Some farmers will leave their fertile fields for "factory work" to take jobs as carpenters and assistant metal workers; room will become hard to find, apartments will bring premium prices, and shacks without electricity and running water will rent for $50 a month. Trailer courts will grow like weeds and pasture lands will be developed into housing projects; restaurants will be overcrowded; telephone service may be slow, and patience thin. License plates from Maine to California, Alaska to Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky mountain folk will mingle with Southern Ohioans in vying for parking places. At the Paducah plant more than 12,000 automobiles are used daily by workers. When the afternoon shift changes at 3 o'clock eight thousand workers head for Paducah, with honking horns and hot tempers. Police forces may be drained of key men because most cities in the area will have to compete with high wages at the atomic plant. While the AEC says most of the hired help will come from the immediate vicinity, they said the same Paducah. Today, an estimated 10,000 persons live in trailers in or near Paducah; more than 1,800 new dwellings and a 300-unit housing project have been built without filling the demand for housing. Another big problem Southern Ohio cities, like Paducah, must face and beat is vice brought in by fringe characters lured by easy money. Just what and how many problems will face the Southern Ohioans can't be catalogued. But it's a safe bet that those Paducah faced will be repeated. A Paducah once said, "If we double everything we had, there still wouldn't have been enough essentials to take care of their needs." Inconvenience, hardship, rudeness, call it what you like, it's progress at its fastest clip, a race for survival at its best—and with it the hope and prayers for a better future. Sure, Paducah had and will have its problems, but solutions are being found. Just like Ohioans will soon discover. Their neighbors on the other side of the river extend their sympathy and congratulations—for they know the problems.

Dark Patches On Sun Pose Top Mystery

Scientists Say Spots May Influence Man's Economics, Weather

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.——(AP)—Canada is making a new try at unlocking the mystery of sunspots, a subject that has fascinated and puzzled the people of the earth for centuries.

The dark patches on the blazing face of the sun are known to stir up various influences on this planet 90 million miles away. But scientists have never figured just how much they are responsible for such things as weather and insect plagues.

Long-range studies now being launched by the Dominion Observatory may produce new evidence.

Astronomers at the observatory on Ottawa's outskirts will turn their 80-foot solar telescope on the superheated "flares" that leap out momentarily from the sunspot areas. The flares bombard the earth with ultraviolet light and electrically-charged particles that throw many terrestrial activities out of normal.

Without a mechanical watch, nothing much can be done to record the flares, which last only a few minutes. They are relatively small by comparison with the dark sunspot areas, which sometimes extend 150,000 miles across.

THE FLARES have come in for attention comparatively recently. The more visible sunspots have been an absorbing topic for ages. A Chinese observer, Ma Twa Lin, reported in 188 AD the appearance of a "bird-shaped" flock on the sun, apparently a cluster of spots. The ancient Chinese had more than 100 records of them, relating them to deaths of emperors and other important personages.

More modern observers link the spots with a wide range of phenomena. Charts kept over a long period show a relationship between their cycles of roughly 11 years and such things as storms, rainfall, lake and river levels, tree growth, disease cycles and the cycles of animal and insect life.

Some have gone so far as to hook them up with stock market variations and the marriage rate.

Dr. Ralph E. DeLury, former assistant dominion astronomer in charge of solar physics, made a long study of these relationships and concluded the spots do exert a "profound influence on terrestrial affairs."

Because of the way they hit physical and organic things, he reasoned, they must also affect economic conditions. An 85-year study of commodity prices in the United Kingdom showed a "response" to the spot cycle. "Economic fluctuations," Dr. DeLury added, "must surely be a factor in variations of marriage rates."

Cops End Cleric's Mountaintop Fast

YAKIMA, Wash., Aug. 22.——(AP)—A 24-day fast by a Bible Presbyterian church minister atop a 7,000-foot mountain has been ended, but not by the higher authority he sought.

The Rev. Robert Kutz, 48, was taken from the mountain Thursday by deputy sheriffs who brought him in after concern was felt for his health. He climbed to the top of Darland Mountain, 45 miles west of here in the Cascades, late last month. He would come down, he said, when told to do so by "a higher authority."

"Go ahead and shoot, I need the money as much as you do," the 32-year-old woman defiantly replied. It worked. The bandit fled.

Leach Collects $500 Scholarship In Tourney; Seeks Second $500

Ted Leach, sharpshooting Circleville kid, yesterday pocketed a $500 college scholarship in the National caddie golf tournament in Columbus and Friday was seeking to add another $500 to it.

As of noon Friday in the semifinal round of the 1952 national tournament, Leach was three holes behind his opponent in the first half of the round.

However, Mayor Ed Amey, accompanying Leach in the 36-hole semifinal test, said things looked "favorable" for the Circleville lad to even the count in the final 18 holes and enter the finals.

Leach Thursday won a $500 scholarship in the caddie tournament by scoring a two-up victory over Larry Shepard of Pittsburgh in a quarter-final round contest.

THE VICTORY over Shepard gave Leach a crack at Al Chandler of Los Angeles in the 36-hole semifinal match being played Friday at Scarlet course of Ohio State university.

Other two semifinalists in the 36-hole grind are Dick Ryan Jr. of Columbus and Jim Lucius of Northfield, Minn.

Things looked dark for Ryan at the midway point in Friday's round, with Lucius holding a six-hole edge over the Columbus lad.

Second half of Friday's semifinal test was to have begun at 1 p. m., with local golfers looking for Leach to pick up his three hole deficit and down Chandler.

By nightfall, after 36 or fewer holes of play, only two lads will still have a chance at the top prize of a $1,500 four-year college scholarship and the runner-up prize of a $1,000 four-year scholarship.

Third place will collect a $750 two-year scholarship, fourth place a $500 two-year scholarship.

Sleep Sickness Fatal To 30

500 Californians Stricken By Malady

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.——(AP)—A sleeping sickness epidemic is creeping northward up California's central valleys, borne on the wings of the tiny female mosquito.

Already the encephalitis has claimed 30 lives and nearly 500 have been reported stricken, the State Health Department says.

Twelve died within the last week. Doctors are powerless to check the disease. There is no known vaccine for humans.

The only hope is to kill off the mosquitoes. Hundreds of men are spraying 276 towns in the valley lowlands and then laying down quarter-mile-wide barriers of poison residue spray around them.

The female Culex tarsalis mosquito—common in California—carries the disease from birds and fowl to humans and humans. It is not carried from horses to humans.

A TOTAL of 499 cases have been reported to the State Health Department, but only 315 have been clinically diagnosed as encephalitis.

Two blood tests from the patient are necessary to determine absolutely that the disease is encephalitis. In most of the reported cases, the necessary two blood tests were not taken.

Dr. Malcolm Merrill, acting director of the health department, said the disease acts quickly. Those stricken usually recovered quickly or die within 24 to 48 hours.

Dr. Merrill said the epidemic may reach as far north as Shasta County—near the Oregon border—before summer is over. He said, however, that it is not expected to branch out of the interior valleys.

Jury Decides Trent Was Insane When Killed Wife 5 Years Ago

Ervin Trent, 27, indicted here five years ago for first-degree murder in connection with killing his wife, soon will be recommitted into Lima State hospital.

The action is expected to follow a hearing held Friday in Pickaway County common pleas court during which the 27-year-old Negro man was declared insane at the time of the commission of the offense.

The verdict was delivered by Jury Foreman Cecil Tomlinson following an hour-long hearing in common pleas court.

Evidence was heard during the trial in the form of examinations by Dr. Bateman and Dr. Nicholas Michaels, who examined the man following the death of his wife and returned verdicts he was psychotic.

Trent was indicted here five years ago after he confessed shooting his wife with a shotgun and then burning their home in an attempt to conceal the crime.

WHEN ARRAIGNED to answer the indictment, he entered a plea of innocence because of insanity, and was adjudged insane prior to trial date by Bateman and Michaels. He was then committed into Lima hospital for treatment and observation.

Recently, however, Lima hospital said Trent had been restored to reason and was able to stand trial.

Friday's hearing before the jury was to determine whether the man was sane or insane at the time the act was committed.

Following the jury's verdict, Trent is expected to be recommitted into Lima hospital, with the possibility he soon may become a free man.

News Expert Says Voter Won't Be Fooled

Both Top Candidates Trying To Travel Middle Of Road

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.——(AP)—The middle of the road is getting crowded with presidential candidates. Within a few hours of each other Republican Dwight Eisenhower and Democrat Adlai Stevenson both claimed it as their natural habitat.

It's not surprising. Both were considered fairly conservative at time of their nomination. It's one of the reasons they were chosen. No one expected radical promises from either of them.

However, neither candidate can convince everyone he is a middle-of-the-road. Stevenson himself said Thursday the middle means different things to different people. Any differences between the two men should appear when they begin their campaign speech making. So far both have been very cautious.

But the fact that Eisenhower and Stevenson claim the center as their favorite place—which might indicate that any differences between them are differences about details—may limit the issues.

For example: Not whether some policy or program of the Democratic administration was right or wrong but whether it was well-handled.

Thus, the voters are not given a choice between a policy or program but a choice between two kinds of managers—Republicans or Democrats.

There is no doubt, judging from his fast denials, that Stevenson is sensitive to the Republican charge he is under Truman's thumb. The latest to hit him with it was Eisenhower himself who said Stevenson was "handpicked" by Truman.

Stevenson has gone out of his way—by referring to the "mess" in Washington and promising to be "ruthless" with corruption—to suggest the country can get a truly new management with a clean broom without changing parties at all.

Turn the Republicans have tender ears when the Democrats hoot "me, tooism," at them.

The implication is they have no quarrel with Democratic programs and policies, so why change the management of an old business which the Republicans seem to think is all right?

Stevenson must have been aching for a chance to fling this charge at Eisenhower, whom the Republicans picked after they themselves this year had put the "me, too," label on their own 1948 candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

When Eisenhower said the country should keep Social Security and some other measures passed under the Democratic administrations since 1932, Stevenson was Johnny-on-the-spot with a "me, too," crack at the general.

And then Thursday, the one-time general said he thought it was OK for the U. S. to enter the Korean war—an eye-to-eye stand with President Truman. Already the Democratic chant of "me-too" is sounding.

Meanwhile, the voters are waiting for both men and their followers to start the actual campaigning when, instead of merely being each other's critics, they offer constructive—and specific—statements.

Noble was caught in Germany by the outbreak of the war. After the fighting ended, he was arrested by the Reds.

Devine told the Columbus Transportation Club there are 1,800 "hard core" Communist Party members in Ohio.

Circleville City Departments Face State Auditor Findings

A state audit of the city of Circleville has resulted in findings for recovery of $7,838 and a report of $8,353 spent illegally over a two-year period.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said the city's police and firemen's relief and pension funds must return $4,445 received illegally from the state.

He also returned findings for recovery of $952 by the city from seven fire department members and $285 from Marguerite Stevenson, Berger Hospital bookkeeper-clerk, in favor of the hospital. The shortage was in hospital collections. He said the audit covered city departments from June 1, 1949, to Aug. 31, 1951.

The audit was completed by R. B. Sullivan, a 171-page description of the city's business for the last two years. It required more than four months to complete.

Ferguson gave this explanation for pension fund findings: The Circleville city auditor certified that a three-tenth mill levy required for receiving state subsidies had been set aside for the funds. But the audit showed that the actual levy was only two-tenths of a mill.

EACH PENSION fund got $2,222.72 in state subsidies over the two-year period.

Ferguson said he offered to let the city transfer enough money to make up the one-tenth mill deficit but was turned down. He quoted George L. Crites, chairman of city council's finance committee, as saying that council refused because of the city's financial condition.

Findings against the firemen totaled $136 each. Involved were Chief Talmer Wise, Robert Wolf, Ray Anderson, Fred Howell, Noble Barr, Don Eitel and Bernard Wolfe.

Ferguson said they received fees for rural fire runs and kept them for their own use in violation of state law.

Since the finding was reported unofficially several months ago, an agreement has been made between the firemen and city council. The firemen turn in all money they receive from rural runs to the city which, in turn, remunerates them for the extra hazard involved.

The state auditor reported that purchase of materials and contracts for hospital repairs without competitive bidding accounted for $6,794 of the illegal expenditures. Statute required such bids, he said.

The other questioned expenditures included $1,216 to a milk inspector whose salary lacked legal approval and $343 to promote a hospital tax levy. Ferguson said the promotion failed to comply with state laws governing expenditure of public funds.

The questioned $1,216 payment was made to R. T. Blaney, who accepted payment in part from the city and payment in part from local dairies as milk inspector.

The "irregularity" involved was that the city, at that time, had made no official move toward appointing an inspector. Since that time, however, Blaney has been hired as sanitarian for the city, with all funds going directly into the city coffers and he receiving his salary directly from the city.

General's View Opposite Of Top Leaders

He Also Raps Policy Held By MacArthur On Attacking China

DENVER, Aug. 22.——(AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower's sharp disagreement with Korean war policy views voiced by other leading Republicans has raised a question whether he might get a kickback within the party ranks.

He coupled his criticism with an assertion that "really terrible blunders" brought on the war—a direct jab at the Truman administration. But he failed to define the "terrible blunders."

He also said at a meeting of Kansas City Republicans held in Kansas City Thursday that:

1. This country had no choice but to intervene when the Communists attacked the South Koreans in June, 1950. If it had not done so, the general added, "we would already be involved in a very much greater and more serious thing than we are today."

But he said that "does not excuse the people that allowed the conditions to arise that brought about that emergency."

2. IF THE ALLIES attacked Red China, "we would be starting another war far more difficult to stop than the one we are in now." And he said further that "no one I know of has presented any feasible military plan for attacking China."

On that point, Eisenhower took direct issue with Gen. Douglas MacArthur and GOP members of Congress who have backed MacArthur's proposal that the Allies bomb Communist China's Manchurian bases north of the Yalu River.

MacArthur backed Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP nomination, and Taft has supported MacArthur's proposed Korean war policies.

On the other point (Eisenhower's statement that the United States had no choice but to intervene in Korea), there also are some Republicans who hold a different view. They feel it was a great mistake to have made the move.

Despite these differences, the general used a campaign technique which delighted his associates—he invited questions at an open meeting.

They produced some of the sharpest criticism Eisenhower has leveled at the administration. Among other things, he:

1. Declared the handling of wage-price controls and other emergency curbs has been "bungled."

2. Said it was "indefensible for any member of the executive department to go up and down the land to criticize a Congress, which is after all the people of the United States." Truman lit into the Republican-controlled 80th Congress, calling it a do-nothing body, during his 1948 whistle-stop campaign.

3. Said he is going to fight as hard as anyone else against "maladministration, the complacency, the arrogance, the complete indifference apparently to dishonesty in government."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The middle of the road is getting crowded with presidential candidates. Within a few hours of each other Republican Dwight Eisenhower and Democrat Adlai Stevenson both claimed it as their natural habitat.

It's not surprising. Both were considered fairly conservative at time of their nomination. It's one of the reasons they were chosen. No one expected radical promises from either of them.

However, neither candidate can convince everyone he is a middle-of-the-road. Stevenson himself said Thursday the middle means different things to different people. Any differences between the two men should appear when they begin their campaign speech making. So far both have been very cautious.

But the fact that Eisenhower and Stevenson claim the center as their favorite place—which might indicate that any differences between them are differences about details—may limit the issues.

For example: Not whether some policy or program of the Democratic administration was right or wrong but whether it was well-handled.

Thus, the voters are not given a choice between a policy or program but a choice between two kinds of managers—Republicans or Democrats.

There is no doubt, judging from his fast denials, that Stevenson is sensitive to the Republican charge he is under Truman's thumb. The latest to hit him with it was Eisenhower himself who said Stevenson was "handpicked" by Truman.

Stevenson has gone out of his way—by referring to the "mess" in Washington and promising to be "ruthless" with corruption—to suggest the country can get a truly new management with a clean broom without changing parties at all.

At turn the Republicans have tender ears when the Democrats hoot "me, tooism," at them.

The implication is they have no quarrel with Democratic programs and policies, so why change the management of an old business which the Republicans seem to think is all right?

Stevenson must have been aching for a chance to fling this charge at Eisenhower, whom the Republicans picked after they themselves this year had put the "me, too," label on their own 1948 candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

When Eisenhower said the country should keep Social Security and some other measures passed under the Democratic administrations since 1932, Stevenson was Johnny-on-the-spot with a "me, too," crack at the general.

And then Thursday, the one-time general said he thought it was OK for the U. S. to enter the Korean war—an eye-to-eye stand with President Truman. Already the Democratic chant of "me-too" is sounding.

Meanwhile, the voters are waiting for both men and their followers to start the actual campaigning when, instead of merely being each other's critics, they offer constructive—and specific—statements.

Yankee Finally Gets Trip Home

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—A 60-year-old American who lived through World War II in Hitler's Germany and then spent seven years in Soviet Zone concentration camps will be able to return to the U. S. soon.

The U. S. consulate here said Charles A. Noble, formerly of Detroit, had been granted a new American passport enabling him to get back home at last. Noble was caught in Germany by the outbreak of the war. After the fighting ended, he was arrested by the Reds.

Red Prober Fears A-Plant Activity

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—The Ohio Un-American Activities Commission fears Communists will step up their activities in Ohio because of the $1.2 billion atomic energy plant to be built in Pike County.

State Rep. Samuel L. Devine, a Columbus Republican and commission member, said Thursday the plant will make Ohio a strategic target area. Devine told the Columbus Transportation Club there are 1,800 "hard core" Communist Party members in Ohio.

Circleville City Departments Face State Auditor Findings

A state audit of the city of Circleville has resulted in findings for recovery of $7,838 and a report of $8,353 spent illegally over a two-year period.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said the city's police and firemen's relief and pension funds must return $4,445 received illegally from the state.

He also returned findings for recovery of $952 by the city from seven fire department members and $285 from Marguerite Steivson, Berger Hospital bookkeeper-clerk, in favor of the hospital. The shortage was in hospital collections. He said the audit covered city departments from June 1, 1949, to Aug. 31, 1951.

The audit was completed by R. B. Sullivan, a 171-page description of the city's business for the last two years. It required more than four months to complete.

Ferguson gave this explanation for pension fund findings: The Circleville city auditor certified that a three-tenth mill levy required for receiving state subsidies had been set aside for the funds. But the audit showed that the actual levy was only two-tenths of a mill.

EACH PENSION fund got $2,222.72 in state subsidies over the two-year period.

Ferguson said he offered to let the city transfer enough money to make up the one-tenth mill deficit but was turned down. He quoted George L. Crites, chairman of city council's finance committee, as saying that council refused because of the city's financial condition.

Findings against the firemen totaled $136 each. Involved were Chief Talmer Wise, Robert Wolf, Ray Anderson, Fred Howell, Noble Barr, Don Eitel and Bernard Wolfe.

Ferguson said they received fees for rural fire runs and kept them for their own use in violation of state law.

Since the finding was reported unofficially several months ago, an agreement has been made between the firemen and city council.

The firemen turn in all money they receive from rural runs to the city which, in turn, remunerates them for the extra hazard involved.

The state auditor reported that purchase of materials and contracts for hospital repairs without competitive bidding accounted for $6,794 of the illegal expenditures. Statute required such bids, he said.

The other questioned expenditures included $1,216 to a milk inspector whose salary lacked legal approval and $343 to promote a hospital tax levy. Ferguson said the promotion failed to comply with state laws governing expenditure of public funds.

The questioned $1,216 payment was made to R. T. Blaney, who accepted payment in part from the city and payment in part from local dairies as milk inspector.

The "irregularity" involved was that the city, at that time, had made no official move toward appointing an inspector. Since that time, however, Blaney has been hired as sanitarian for the city, with all funds going directly into the city coffers and he receiving his salary directly from the city.

General's View Opposite Of Top Leaders

He Also Raps Policy Held By MacArthur On Attacking China

DENVER, Aug. 22.—Dwight D. Eisenhower's sharp disagreement with Korean war policy views voiced by other leading Republicans has raised a question whether he might get a kickback within the party ranks.

He coupled his criticism with an assertion that "really terrible blunders" brought on the war—a direct jab at the Truman administration. But he failed to define the "terrible blunders."

He also said at a meeting of Midwestern Republican leaders in Kansas City Thursday that:

1. This country had no choice but to intervene when the Communists attacked the South Koreans in June, 1950. If it had not done so, the general added, "we would already be involved in a very much greater and more serious thing than we are today."

But he said that "does not excuse the people that allowed the conditions to arise that brought about that emergency."

2. IF THE ALLIES attacked Red China, "we would be starting another war far more difficult to stop than the one we are in now."

And he said further that "no one I know of has presented any feasible military plan for attacking China."

On that point, Eisenhower took direct issue with Gen. Douglas MacArthur and GOP members of Congress who have backed MacArthur's proposal that the Allies bomb Communist China's Manchurian bases north of the Yalu River.

MacArthur backed Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP nomination, and Taft has supported MacArthur's proposed Korean war policies.

On the other point (Eisenhower's statement that the United States had no choice but to intervene in Korea), there also are some Republicans who hold a different view. They feel it was a great mistake to have made the move.

Despite these differences, the general used a campaign technique which delighted his associates—he invited questions at an open meeting.

They produced some of the sharpest criticism Eisenhower has leveled at the administration. Among other things, he:

1. Declared the handling of wage-price controls and other emergency curbs has been "bungled."

2. Said it was "indefensible for any member of the executive department to go up and down the land to criticize a Congress, which is after all the people of the United States." Truman lit into the Republican-controlled 80th Congress, calling it a do-nothing body, during his 1948 whistle-stop campaign.

3. Said he is going to fight as hard as anyone else against "maladministration, the complacency, the arrogance, the complete indifference apparently to dishonesty in government."

Tot Gets Shiner In 30-Foot Fall

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Aug. 22.—Two-year-old Peter Dang-erfield fell 30 feet from a third-floor window of his home Friday and escaped with a black eye.

He bounced off a clothes line into his 4-month-old brother's baby carriage and toppled gently from there onto the cobbled yard.

100,000 Opening Day Crowd Seen As State Fair 'Opens'

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22 — (U-P)—The gates of the Ohio State Fair swung open at 6 a. m. Friday and fair officials predicted more than 100,000 persons would tour the sprawling grounds by nightfall.

Friday belonged to Ohio school youngsters and Fair Director Howard S. Foust gave them nearly one million free tickets to the eight-day exposition. He designated Friday as "Youth Day."

Highlighting the celebration for Ohio youngsters was a special youth parade on the race track.

The "Youth Day" had a special significance for farm youngsters. Friday is the 50th anniversary of the founding of 4-H clubs, right here in Ohio.

Future Farmers of America willingly stepped into the background for Friday's activities to give their fellow club a hand. Next year, on the FFA's 25th anniversary, they will get the same cooperation.

FOR THE SECOND time in its 100-year history the fair opened on Friday and runs through the following Friday. Last year the opening day attendance was 16,129.

Foust based his prediction of Friday's attendance on the million free tickets and the prospect of fair weather. The weatherman promised less humid weather with the high around 80 degrees.

But the special opening day isn't the only thing that will make this year's fair the biggest.

More than $1 million worth of choice meat on the hoof is roving the fairgrounds "range."

Last year's entries are topped in everything except swine and draft horses.

Even though recent hog diseases took their toll in entries, this year there are 2,977 swine in the senior division compared to 3,024 last year, a difference of only 47.

Ohio Education Chief Denies Rap By Lodge

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22 — (U-P)—Dr. Clyde Hissong, state director of education, denies his department has taken "high-handed" action in revoking school charters.

He said in reply to a resolution adopted Tuesday by the convention of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics:

"The state department of education has no authority to initiate school consolidations, which usually result when a school charter is revoked."

"Prior to 1947 the director of education had absolute authority to revoke on his own the charter of any high school. The legislature of that year, in order to make the process more democratic, created the high school board to determine whether schools are living up to state standards. If they are not, the board then recommends that the director revoke the charter."

The JOUAM resolution charged that the department used "high-handed actions in taking away high school charters without first carrying out a full fledged educational program designed to acquaint all residents of the area with possible school district reorganization plans."

Hissong said six high school charters had been revoked this year, the lowest number since 1948.

Ike Support McCarthy? Dem Doubts It

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — (U-P)—The chairman of the Democratic Speakers Bureau has labeled "incredible" a Republican counterpart's assertion that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will support Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma issued this statement after Sen. Karl Mundt of South Dakota said Thursday that Eisenhower will "endorse and campaign actively" for McCarthy if the latter is renominated by Wisconsin Republicans and if he asks for Eisenhower's help. Mundt is co-chairman of the Republican Speakers Bureau.

Monroney said he finds it impossible to believe that Eisenhower would appear on the same platform with McCarthy because of the latter's attacks on Gen. George C. Marshall.

In a Senate speech McCarthy accused Marshall of participating in "a conspiracy of infamy so black that when it is finally exposed, its principals shall be forever deserving of the maledictions of all honest men."

"Either Sen. Mundt hasn't read this scurrilous attack on Gen. Eisenhower's friend and sponsor or he fails to grant to his candidate any of the human loyalties of a friend for a friend," Monroney said. "It is incredible that Gen. Eisenhower can embrace McCarthy, the author of this attack upon a great American. Gen. Eisenhower knows better than anyone else of Gen. Marshall's great service and patriotism to his country."

Mink Claimed Aid To Both Wife, Mate

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 — (U-P)—Mink is a girl's best friend, says Bette Yokova, who designs fabulous furs for the upper crust.

Bette, blonde, blue-eyed and beguiling, claims a mink coat can make a glamor girl out of a wallflower, a femme fatale out of a mousy wife and a success out of a failure. She explains:

"A mink coat is psychological. When a woman puts one on, she changes her personality to match. She lives up to it. You can see her changing before your eyes."

No scandalous implications are indicated by this line of reasoning. Bette says solid husbands are the best mink buyers and the mink is for their wives. It's always a good investment, she says, because nothing makes a man feel more prosperous than to show off a mink-coated wife. And if he feels prosperous, he puts some extra effort into being prosperous.

"Any smart wife should be able to get a mink coat with very little trouble, if she puts her mind to it. She can point out that it's a sign of success, that it will raise her husband's stock in the eyes of his business associates, and be-

Ike Support McCarthy? Dem Doubts It

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — (AP)—The chairman of the Democratic Speakers Bureau has labeled "incredible" a Republican counterpart's assertion that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will support Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma issued this statement after Sen. Karl Mundt of South Dakota said Thursday that Eisenhower will "endorse and campaign actively" for McCarthy if the latter is renominated by Wisconsin Republicans and if he asks for Eisenhower's help. Mundt is co-chairman of the Republican Speakers Bureau.

Monroney said he finds it impossible to believe that Eisenhower would appear on the same platform with McCarthy because of the latter's attacks on Gen. George C. Marshall.

In a Senate speech McCarthy accused Marshall of participating in "a conspiracy of infamy so black that when it is finally exposed, its principals shall be forever deserving of the maledictions of all honest men."

"Either Sen. Mundt hasn't read this scurrilous attack on Gen. Eisenhower's friend and sponsor or he fails to grant to his candidate any of the human loyalties of a friend for a friend," Monroney said. "It is incredible that Gen. Eisenhower can embrace McCarthy, the author of this attack upon a great American. Gen. Eisenhower knows better than anyone else of Gen. Marshall's great service and patriotism to his country."

Mink Claimed Aid To Both Wife, Mate

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 — (AP)—Mink is a girl's best friend, says Bette Yokova, who designs fabulous furs for the upper crust.

Bette, blonde, blue-eyed and beguiling, claims a mink coat can make a glamor girl out of a wallflower, a femme fatale out of a mousy wife and a success out of a failure. She explains:

"A mink coat is psychological. When a woman puts one on, she changes her personality to match. She lives up to it. You can see her changing before your eyes."

No scandalous implications are indicated by this line of reasoning. Bette says solid husbands are the best mink buyers and the mink is for their wives. It's always a good investment, she says, because nothing makes a man feel more prosperous than to show off a mink-coated wife. And if he feels prosperous, he puts some extra effort into being prosperous.

"Any smart wife should be able to get a mink coat with very little trouble, if she puts her mind to it. She can point out that it's a sign of success, that it will raise her husband's stock in the eyes of his business associates, and be-

Saul and might be killed, but he obeyed the Lord and told the people "that he came peaceably and to offer sacrifice."

As he had been commanded, he called Jesse, a Bethlehemite, to the sacrifice and his sons also. Seven of Jesse's sons passed before Samuel and each one he looked at seemed good to him, but Jehovah said no, he was not the man.

"Are here all thy children?" inquired Samuel, and Jesse answered that the youngest was tending the sheep. Samuel demanded that he be brought, and when he came "he was ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look at," and Jehovah said, "Arise, anoint him; for this is he." So David had his first anointing.

At first Saul loved the boy, who had killed the giant Philistine in battle and saved his people. When Saul was in one of his bad, melancholy moods, David played for him on the harp and soothed him.

Saul's son, Jonathan, loved David at sight and was always his faithful and steadfast friend, but Saul, knowing that he was out of favor with Jehovah, began to suspect that this innocent appearing young man might be a menace to him, especially as he was a wise person and likeable. Everyone loved him, we are told. Twice Saul sought to kill David his fine son were slain in battle, and when David heard of it he mourned sincerely, not only for his great friend, Jonathan, but for Saul too, who had been so cruel to him. He forgot Saul's faults, and remembered only that he had once been a fine, brave, stalwart man. He sang a beautiful song of mourning for both men.

Now things moved quickly. The tribe of Judah quickly anointed David king of that tribe. Abner, captain of King Saul's host, made Saul's youngest son, Ishbosheth, who had escaped the slaughter of his family, king over Israel. Thereafter there was a feud between the two groups, but the house of Saul grew weaker, and David grew stronger, and finally "came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh."

"Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wast that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the Lord said to thee, Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captain over Israel."

"So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron. . . . and they anointed David king over Israel."

So the Israelites had their king who would bring great renown to his people, and who would walk with Jehovah, and be blessed by Him.

RAMPARTS UNWATCHED
IF SUCH a thing should happen as that some strategic industrial center in the United States were attacked by enemy bombers, next day there would undoubtedly be a great rush to enlist in the army of volunteer skywatchers whose objective is to spot the approach of any foe and give warning in time to ward off the attack.

Lacking such a dramatic incentive, enlistments in "Operation Skywatch" are far short of the need.

The United States today is involved in direct military action only in Korea, but this and other hot spots around the globe serve to point up the dangers inherent in the cold war and the possibility of its being converted into a new world conflict at any time. It is this ever-present peril that makes Operation Skywatch imperative.

In a day when "hate America" is being dinned constantly into the ears of millions in the Soviet Union and its satellite countries, to take chances with the nation's safety is unthinkable. There is no overt evidence that attack is planned, but Pearl Harbor was the demonstration of how a nation can strike even when its envoys are talking peace.

Air Force and civil defense officials have called for 500,000 volunteers, to serve two hours daily, so that the 6,000 posts of vigil along this country's long perimeter can be manned 24 hours a day as long as the danger lasts. Thus far, only 150,000 men, women and children of 12 years and above have responded.

DOLLAR BUYING POWER
A NEW SURVEY SHOWS that the dollar, compared to what it would buy in 1939, is now worth 52 cents, on the average. That average is made up of a large number of items some of which have advanced moderately in price while others have skyrocketed.

The consumer's gas and electric dollar, for example, is worth 100 cents, the rent dollar has declined merely to 74 cents. But the clothing dollar is worth only 50 cents, the food dollar averages 41 cents, but the meat dollar is worth only 35 cents.

The purchasing power of the dollar doesn't tell the whole inflation story because taxes—particularly federal taxes—have soared, and fewer 52-cent dollars are left in consumer pockets after taxes.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — Although Oscar Chapman is a key member of Gov. Adlai Stevenson's small, personally selected campaign committee, the secretary of the interior has engaged in a devious political maneuver which may lose the Democratic nominee the 32 electoral votes of California. In a tight presidential race, these ballots could decide the winner.

In fairness to the politically astute Denver lawyer, it should be noted that the man responsible for his anti-Stevenson gesture is Harry S. Truman. In keeping with his code of clubhouse loyalty, Truman has forced Chapman to intervene in the California-Arizona squabble over water rights on the Colorado River solely to insure the reelection of Senate Leader Ernest W. McFarland and Representative John R. Murock.

These two men have been Truman torch-bearers on Capitol Hill. They face hard fights in November, for Arizona has shown Republican leanings in recent years. But the Stevenson advisers who know of this intrigue question whether it is worth the possible loss of 32 electoral votes, and possibly more in other western states aligned with California in the water dispute.

CONTROVERSY—For an understanding of the politico-economic background, it must be explained that the Colorado River is now the only source of additional water in this area. California cities and agricultural areas in the southern section will suffer seriously unless they can tap this stream. Arizona demands the life-or-death "liquid gold" for irrigation of new farm acreage.

For years each state has quarreled as to whether the terms of a regional water compact entitle it to draw upon the Colorado. Besides political and legal disputes, there have been physical encounters between disputants on the scene.

Efforts to reach a settlement through arbitration, through appeals to the federal government and the states involved, as well as proposals to ask the Supreme Court to rule on the question, have failed.

In short, it is probably the most bitter interstate controversy since Civil War days, when border states shed blood over the question of extending slavery.

SOLEMNE — The political scheme for reelection of Truman's Capitol Hill pals was hatched early in July, when Chapman conferred with McFarland, Murock and H. J. Mower, chairman of the Arizona Streams Commission, an official state agency.

As a result of their huddle, Mower wrote Chapman a letter, applying for the grant of a right of way for construction of a $25 million 240-mile aqueduct from the Colorado River to Central Arizona. This is the key structure of any system under which Colorado's water would flow into the Arizona area it is proposed to irrigate. If it is built, California is out of luck.

'PHONY' — Chapman granted the Mower application immediately, although it will be many years before the legal dispute and deadlock are settled. The cabinet member's action may corral votes for McFarland and Murock, but it will not bring any water to Arizona's thirsty acres.

However, the Chapman gesture rated big, black headlines in the Arizona newspapers. McFarland and Murock have made it the major issue of their campaign for a return to Washington.

The trick bears a striking resemblance to the Truman-Brannan hornswoogling of the farmers in 1948, when they successfully blamed a Republican Congress for driving down the price of wheat, corn and livestock. Even Representative Harry Sheppard, a prominent California Democrat said: "Chapman has pulled a phony and he knows it!"

BRIEFED — Unlike Dewey in 1948, however, Dwight Eisenhower had listened to advisers who briefed him in detail on the Truman-Chapman-McFarland conspiracy. They were Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, Republican vice-presidential nominee, and Gov. Howard Pyle of Arizona, also a Republican.

These Days
A Congressional committee, headed by Representative Eugene Cox of Georgia, is now engaged in an investigation of the Foundations, a vast reservoir of dead men's money and a terrifying power in this country. It needs to be noted that many Foundations are organized by men still alive and by corporations as a device to do good instead of paying taxes. There are about 10,000 Foundations, large and small, and their funds run to more than $3 billion.

The startling fact about some of the Foundations, particularly the larger ones, is that while they were founded by such capitalists as John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, Julius Rosenwald and latterly Henry Ford, in time the help hired to run them have grown powerful and wilful and expend the money on causes which would have offended the benefactors were they alive to see it.

Henry Ford, for instance, made nearly all his money in this country, but Paul Hoffman, who is spending that money, seems to prefer to pour it into remote bottomless pits and to expend it for meaningless purposes, such as an investigation as to why the world is full of refugees, when, as a matter of fact, it always has been. That is how you and I and Paul Hoffman probably came to be born in this country.

Congressman Cox presided over the ill-fated investigation of the FCC with unusual ability. When he brought the investigation right into the White House, steps were taken by President Roosevelt to suppress it, and the President succeeded.

In the matter of the Foundations, Cox will be able to begin with at least two proved facts, namely, Alger Hiss's presidency of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the relations of the Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations to the Institute of Pacific Relations. With regard to the former, Cox can begin where the courts ended; with regard to the latter, he has the McCarran Committee reports to guide him.

William Fulton, who made a study of the Foundations for the "American Legion Magazine," makes this very interesting point:

"How do the Stalinites and their stooges dip their buckets into the Foundation pool?"

"They do it by masking the contributions they receive as legitimate and charitable. Millions of dollars have been ladled out to Communists and Red-front organizations under such euphemisms as fellowships, scholarships, research, studies for such humanitarian causes as international peace, better human relations, and the like. Sometimes the ultimate beneficiary of such funds is hidden by cleverly relaying the money through two or even three intermediary Foundations."

Alger Hiss was not only president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace; he was also trustee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation and the World Peace Foundation. He was a director of the Institute of Pacific Relations, one of the beneficiaries of both Carnegie and Rockefeller money. Here is an interlocking directorate by which a traitor had control of an $11

Early Surgery of Benefit In Treating a Brain Tumor

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
ONE of the truly amazing branches of surgery consists of operations on the brain. For hundreds of years this type of operation was practically impossible, but today we can locate growths, such as tumors, in the brain, open the skull, remove the tumor, and restore the patient to health.

There are many types of brain tumors, some of which grow rapidly, others slowly. Some are extremely fatal, while some can be removed readily.

Grows Slowly
One type of brain tumor, which is not too uncommon, is known as an acoustic neurofibroma. This tumor grows slowly and can be definitely cured by surgery.

Unfortunately, however, people have a tendency to overlook the signs of such a tumor, and thus delay doing anything about it until it is far advanced. In fact, it has been found that the average person with such a growth actually enters the hospital three and a half years after the first warning sign. Such delays have caused quite a large number of deaths from brain tumors. If this condition could be diagnosed sooner, the number of these deaths would be smaller, it is believed.

First Symptoms
The first signs of this type of tumor are usually a gradual deafness and ringing in the ears. These may be the only symptoms for the first eighteen months. As the growth increases in size, it may bring pains in the face.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
C. B.: I have a lung abscess. Will I have to have an operation?
Answer: Lung abscesses, usually, must be treated by means of surgical operation. There are no other measures that will bring about a cure. On the other hand, an operation is not always possible, since it depends upon the location of the abscess. Of course, the individual should be under the care of a surgeon.

An old bishop in the nation's capital was sick to death of the socials and embassy parties he was expected to attend every other afternoon. At one of them he entered warily, glanced sourly at the over-familiar cast of characters, and sank into the nearest chair. The hostess asked coily, "a spot of tea, Bishop?" "No tea," he growled. "Coffee, Bishop?" "No coffee." An understanding woman, she whispered in his ear, "Scotch and water, Bishop?" Said the Bishop, brightening, "No water."

A debonair Wall Street broker came down with a virus infection, and was hospitalized for a fortnight. Visiting him about his tenth day in bed a friend was not surprised to note that the nurse was a beautiful blonde, but was puzzled to see two entirely different charts clipped to the broker's bed. "The one on the left," explained the broker, when pressed, "is for my illness. As for the one on the right—well, do you see the steady line of improvement? It charts the progress I'm making with that blonde nurse."

ANECDOTE—W. Averell Harriman denies the truth of the delightful anecdote which swept through Chicago during the Democratic convention, to his political disadvantage.

According to the story, "Honorable" came down to breakfast one fine morning, stretched his arms and said to his wife: "I feel like a million dollars." To which she is reported to have replied: "Why so depressed, dear?"

When a brash newspaper reporter questioned the multi-millionaire Mutual Security Administrator about the incident, Harriman, who has no sense of humor, thought hard and then responded:

"Why, it can't be true! My wife hasn't come down to breakfast for twenty years!"

CHAPTER TWENTY
BLAISE knew that Vasquez would have cut south of the highway soon after leaving the town, plunging into the broken hills and canyons. He found traces of several horses cutting away to the road toward the south. He followed the tracks. They followed the curve of the lower hills for several miles, skirting the fringes of the valley. Then they suddenly turned sharply and led Blaise into a cleft between two low hills, circling the base of one and plunging into a narrow canyon that writhed deeper into the mountains.
Blaise rode with mounting hope. No honest working crew would take this tortuous way. Blaise followed along, knowing no rider could scale the sheer walls, certain that he would find the tracks somewhere beyond. But the canyon opened into a narrow grassy meadow, bounded by a rocky stream bed. There were two canyons leading out of it and in the mouth of neither one could Blaise find any sign. So he picked one of the canyons at random and set his horse into it. It pinched in, huge rock walls hanging silently and ominously over him. Finally Blaise came onto a meadow that sloped upward to a transverse ridge. He set the horse at the top. He saw that he had almost threaded the mountain range. He could see the ocean, very close now, only three lower ranges intervening between himself and the narrow beach.
He rode back down the slope, choosing a canyon that veered off at an angle toward the north and east. It should bring him out somewhere on the eastern edge of the Conejo or, possibly, just beyond the pass above Calabasas.
He rode disconsolately. About midmorning he came into a cup-like depression in the mountains circled by a jagged wall of jumbled rocks. Halfway across the rocky floor a rifle cracked sharply. Blaise jerked the reins and his hand slashed down to his Colt, his eyes lifting to the fanged ramparts far above.
A rifle spoke from another direction and the slug buzzed spitefully by, smashing against a distant rock and whining off. Blaise sat with his Colt lifted as laughter mocked him.
"There can be more, senor," a voice called.
"Who are you?" Blaise demanded.
"Tiburcio Vasquez. We met once before, senor. Had I known it was you, I would have promised your ears to the man who hired me."
"Show yourself!" Blaise challenged, and Vasquez laughed.
"In my good time, and my place. You have been watched since last night. We did not think you would find us."
"Where's Hal King? If you've killed him, I'll climb those rocks after you!"
"You'd die within a foot of where you stand," Vasquez answered. "Your friend is safe in Calabasas with a message for you."
"You've turned Hal loose?"
"Free as air, senor. Free as you are... at the moment."
"Is he hurt?"
"A flesh wound that is healing, no more."
Blaise slowly lowered the Colt and shoved it in the holster.
"What message did you send with Hal?"
"Very short, senor. Leave your rancho. Get out of this country. Go where you will, but ride far and never come back."
"You kidnapped Hal for that...?"
"Next time there will not be a kidnapping. There will be bullets, maybe in the night, or maybe in the day from a distant rock."
Blaise felt baffled. "Why do you want me out of the country?"
"I don't care if you stay or go, except for that little matter of the stage. That I would like to settle someday. But I have a patron, senor. He has paid me very well. I give value for his gold. You do not leave, I see that you stay in these mountains, where a bullet catch you."
Blaise waited. There was silence. He carefully scanned the ramparts, could see no movement. He called, there was no answer. Vasquez was gone, his men with him.
It was close to sundown by the time he had cleared the mountains, rode through Calabasas and threaded the last canyon to the rancho. Lights blazed a friendly welcome and Blaise wearily dismounted, turned his horse into the corral. The door opened and Alen's big bulk showed against the light.
"Blaise? ... Hal's here."
Alen moved aside and Blaise entered the bunkhouse.
Hal indicated his arm. "Bullet-nicked, that's all."
Blaise stepped back, relief showing on his face. "Vasquez threw me in the mountains. He said he'd let you go, but I didn't completely believe him."
Hal's face darkened. "He let me go, about a mile from here. I'm to tell you to get out of these parts and stay out, me with you. If we don't, then we can figure on a bushwhack any time, any place."
"Where's his hideout?" Blaise asked.
"They rode me over the pass from Calabasas and into the mountains, helpless as a roped doggie. Then they blindfolded me. Next I could see, I was locked in a shack."
"No window?"
"One, with a cliff wall maybe fifty feet away. I couldn't tell nothing, Blaise. They blindfolded me when they took me out. That's all I know. If I had an idea where it was, I'd sure ride in and clean me up some bandidos. I want a crack at those gent's."
"Then we won't leave the country?"
"For a bunch like that!" Hal gasped. "Vasquez is the gent who tried to rob the stage. He holds that against us... said if he hadn't been hired, he'd start gunning us right away."
"Who hired him?"
"He never said. I tried to pump him but it didn't do no good. Could be Leonis."
Hal tugged at his ear lobe. "I agree, Leonis would use his own crew for any dirty work. But who, Blaise, if it wasn't him?"
"I'd give an arm for an answer to that one," he growled.
Someone was riding up to the cabin. Blaise moved to the door, palming the gun from his holster. He edged it open. Four or five riders came down the slope from the ridge above, making no attempt to conceal themselves. Blaise stood within the black shadow of the building, watching the silver-lit horsemen.
"Randell!" a man called. "Blaise Randall!"
Blaise shouted an answer, not moving from the shadows. The men came on, drew rein and then hastily dismounted. Hal spoke from the darkness just within the room.
"Las Montanas! That big gent's Raikes."
"Thatcher?" Blaise called.
"It's me, Randall. Rennie here?"
"Rennie!" Blaise holstered his gun and strode out into the moonlight. "Was he supposed to be?"
Thatcher came toward him, then halted, looking around as though he expected to find his daughter. "I... thought she might be. She went riding this afternoon and has never returned. There was a chance she was over here."

RAMPARTS UNWATCHED

IF SUCH a thing should happen as that some strategic industrial center in the United States were attacked by enemy bombers, next day there would undoubtedly be a great rush to enlist in the army of volunteer skywatchers whose objective is to spot the approach of any foe and give warning in time to ward off the attack.

Lacking such a dramatic incentive, enlistments in "Operation Skywatch" are far short of the need.

The United States today is involved in direct military action only in Korea, but this and other hot spots around the globe serve to point up the dangers inherent in the cold war and the possibility of its being converted into a new world conflict at any time. It is this ever-present peril that makes Operation Skywatch imperative.

In a day when "hate America" is being dinned constantly into the ears of millions in the Soviet Union and its satellite countries, to take chances with the nation's safety is unthinkable. There is no overt evidence that attack is planned, but Pearl Harbor was the demonstration of how a nation can strike even when its envoys are talking peace.

Air Force and civil defense officials have called for 500,000 volunteers, to serve two hours daily, so that the 6,000 posts of vigil along this country's long perimeter can be manned 24 hours a day as long as the danger lasts. Thus far, only 150,000 men, women and children of 12 years and above have responded.

DOLLAR BUYING POWER

A NEW SURVEY SHOWS that the dollar, compared to what it would buy in 1939, is now worth 52 cents, on the average. That average is made up of a large number of items some of which have advanced moderately in price while others have skyrocketed.

The consumer's gas and electric dollar, for example, is worth 100 cents, the rent dollar has declined merely to 74 cents. But the clothing dollar is worth only 50 cents, the food dollar averages 41 cents, but the meat dollar is worth only 35 cents.

The purchasing power of the dollar doesn't tell the whole inflation story because taxes—particularly federal taxes—have soared, and fewer 52-cent dollars are left in consumer pockets after taxes.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — Although Oscar Chapman is a key member of Gov. Adlai Stevenson's small, personally selected campaign committee, the secretary of the interior has engaged in a devious political maneuver which may lose the Democratic nominee the 32 electoral votes of California. In a tight presidential race, these ballots could decide the winner.

In fairness to the politically astute Denver lawyer, it should be noted that the man responsible for his anti-Stevenson gesture is Harry S. Truman. In keeping with his code of clubhouse loyalty, Truman has forced Chapman to intervene in the California-Arizona squabble over water rights on the Colorado River solely to insure the reelection of Senate Leader Ernest W. McFarland and Representative John R. Murock.

These two men have been Truman torch-bearers on Capitol Hill. They face hard fights in November, for Arizona has shown Republican leanings in recent years. But the Stevenson advisers who know of this intrigue question whether it is worth the possible loss of 32 electoral votes, and possibly more in other western states aligned with California in the water dispute.

These Days

A Congressional committee, headed by Representative Eugene Cox of Georgia, is now engaged in an investigation of the Foundations, a vast reservoir of dead men's money and a terrifying power in this country. It needs to be noted that many Foundations are organized by men still alive and by corporations as a device to do good instead of paying taxes. There are about 10,000 Foundations, large and small, and their funds run to more than $3 billion.

The startling fact about some of the Foundations, particularly the larger ones, is that while they were founded by such capitalists as John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, Julius Rosenwald and latterly Henry Ford, in time the help hired to run them have grown powerful and wilful and expend the money on causes which would have offended the benefactors were they alive to see it.

Henry Ford, for instance, made nearly all his money in this country, but Paul Hoffman, who is spending that money, seems to prefer to pour it into remote bottomless pits and to expend it for meaningless purposes, such as an investigation as to why the world is full of refugees, when, as a matter of fact, it always has been. That is how you and I and Paul Hoffman probably came to be born in this country.

Congressman Cox presided over the ill-fated investigation of the FCC with unusual ability. When he brought the investigation right into the White House, steps were taken by President Roosevelt to suppress it, and the President succeeded.

In the matter of the Foundations, Cox will be able to begin with at least two proved facts, namely, Alger Hiss's presidency of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the relations of the Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations to the Institute of Pacific Relations. With regard to the former, Cox can begin where the courts ended; with regard to the latter, he has the McCarran Committee reports to guide him.

William Fulton, who made a study of the Foundations for the "American Legion Magazine," makes this very interesting point:

"How do the Stalinists and their stooges dip their buckets into the Foundation pool?"

"They do it by masking the contributions they receive as legitimate and charitable. Millions of dollars have been ladled out to Communists and Red-front organizations under such euphemisms as fellowships, scholarships, research, studies for such humanitarian causes as international peace, better human relations, and the like. Sometimes the ultimate beneficiary of such funds is hidden by cleverly relaying the money through two or even three intermediary Foundations."

Alger Hiss was not only president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace; he was also trustee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation and the World Peace Foundation. He was a director of the Institute of Pacific Relations, one of the beneficiaries of both Carnegie and Rockefeller money. Here is an interlocking directorate by which a traitor had control of an $11

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the truly amazing branches of surgery consists of operations on the brain. For hundreds of years this type of operation was practically impossible, but today we can locate growths, such as tumors, in the brain, open the skull, remove the tumor, and restore the patient to health.

There are many types of brain tumors, some of which grow rapidly, others slowly. Some are extremely fatal, while some can be removed readily.

Grows Slowly

One type of brain tumor, which is not too uncommon, is known as an acoustic neuroma. This tumor grows slowly and can be definitely cured by surgery.

Unfortunately, however, people have a tendency to overlook the signs of such a tumor, and thus delay doing anything about it until it is far advanced. In fact, it has been found that the average person with such a growth actually enters the hospital three and a half years after the first warning sign. Such delays have caused quite a large number of deaths from brain tumors. If this condition could be diagnosed sooner, the number of these deaths would be smaller, it is believed.

First Symptoms

The first signs of this type of tumor are usually a gradual deafness and ringing in the ears. These may be the only symptoms for the first eighteen months. As the growth increases in size, it may bring pains in the face.

Numbness, with fleeting, burning pains around the face, may also develop. As the tumor progresses, the person has difficulty in walking, seems to be off balance, and may appear to be drunk.

Finally, after another year of constant growth, the tumor presses on other nerves in the brain, and the person may have double vision and difficulty in tasting.

Surgery Not Too Difficult

As a rule, the proper type of surgery is not too difficult, and the tumor can be removed quite successfully.

Recently it has been found that if one of the isotopes of boron is injected into a vein, it usually travels to this type of tumor. The boron, which has been made radioactive, is very effective in destroying the growth. This may give us a new way to reach tumors deep in the brain tissue.

Thus, many brain tumors can be treated with fair success if people will consult their physicians as soon as they are bothered with strange symptoms.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. B.: I have a lung abscess. Will I have to have an operation? Answer: Lung abscesses, usually, must be treated by means of surgical operation. There are no other measures that will bring about a cure. On the other hand, an operation is not always possible, since it depends upon the location of the abscess. Of course, the individual should be under the care of a surgeon.

Try, Stop Me

An old bishop in the nation's capital was sick to death of the socials and embassy parties he was expected to attend every other afternoon. At one of them he entered warily, glanced sourly at the over-familiar cast of characters, and sank into the nearest chair. The hostess asked coily, "A spot of tea, Bishop?" "No tea," he growled. "Coffee, Bishop?" "No coffee," An understanding woman, she whispered in his ear, "Scotch and water, Bishop?" Said the Bishop, brightly, "No water."

"The one on the left," explained the broker, when pressed, "is for my illness. As for the one on the right—well, do you see the steady line of improvement? It charts the progress I'm making with that blonde nurse."

CHAPTER TWENTY

BLAISE knew that Vasquez would have cut south of the highway soon after leaving the town, plunging into the broken hills and canyons. He found trace of several horses cutting away to the road toward the south. He followed the tracks. They followed the curve of the lower hills for several miles, skirting the fringes of the valley. Then they suddenly turned sharply and led Blaise into a cleft between two low hills, circling the base of one and plunging into a narrow canyon that writhed deeper into the mountains.

Blaise rode with mounting hope. No honest working crew would take this tortuous way. Blaise followed along, knowing no rider could scale the sheer walls, certain that he would find the tracks somewhere beyond. But the canyon opened into a narrow grassy meadow, bounded by a rocky stream bed. There were two canyons leading out of it and in the mouth of neither one could Blaise find any sign. So he picked one of the canyons at random and set his horse into it. It pinched in, huge rock walls hanging silently and ominously over him. Finally Blaise came out a meadow that sloped upward to a transverse ridge. He set the horse at the slope and drew rein at the top.

He saw that he had almost threaded the mountain range. He could see the ocean, very close now, only three lower ranges intervening between himself and the narrow beach.

He rode back down the slope, choosing a canyon that veered off at an angle toward the north and east. It should bring him out somewhere on the eastern edge of the Conejo or, possibly, just beyond the pass above Calabasas.

He rode disconsolately. About midmorning he came into a cup-like depression in the mountains circled by a jagged wall of jumbled rocks. Halfway across the rocky floor a rifle cracked sharply. Blaise jerked the reins and his hand slashed down to his Colt, his eyes lifting to the fanged ramparts far above.

A rifle spoke from another direction and the slug buzzed spitefully by, smashing against a distant rock and whining off. Blaise sat with his Colt lifted as laughter mocked him.

"There can be more, senor," a voice called.

"Who are you?" Blaise demanded.

"You'd die within a foot of where you stand," Vasquez answered. "Your friend is safe in Calabasas with a message for you."

"Free as air, senor. Free as you are... at the moment."

"Is he hurt?"

"A flesh wound that is healing, no more."

Blaise slowly lowered the Colt and shoved it in the holster.

"What message did you send with Hal?"

"Very short, senor. Leave your rancho. Get out of this country. Go where you will, but ride far and never come back."

"You kidnapped Hal for that..."

Seimer-Wilson Wedding
Read In Lutheran Church

Rites Performed
At 7:30 P.M.

Miss Irene May Seimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer F. Seimer of Circleville Route 4, became the bride of Earl E. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coit H. Wilson of Ashville Route 2, in the Trinity Lutheran church, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

Baskets of gladiolus, fern and huckleberry, and seven-branched candelabra, provided the background for the double ring ceremony, which was read by the Rev. George Troutman.

For her marriage the bride wore a ballerina length gown of white imported chantilly lace over pleated nylon net and bridal satin. The extremely bouffant skirt cascaded over a crinoline petticoat. Her ballerina length veil of imported silk English illusion was caught to a Juliet cap of matching lace and illusion, enhanced with wheat-shaped pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and wore pearl earrings, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Eugene B. Bach of Washington C.H., sister of the bride, served as matron-of-honor. Her gown was of fuchsia silk starched organza, made with shoulder framing fishu-draped, portrait neckline and a fitted bodice. The full gored skirt was worn over a matching taffeta slip. She wore matching nylon tulle mitts and a pearl necklace, which was the gift of the bride.

Her headband was of yellow roses and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Harold F. Wilson, of Commercial Point, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were George Seimer and Franklin Seimer, brothers of the bride.

Miss Jeannette Wenrich offered a program of nuptial organ music and Miss Ruth Troutman sang, "Thru The Years," "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer." For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a gray floral print dress with which she combined black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Wilson wore a navy blue lace and crepe dress with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Pickaway Arms for approximately 60 guests. The bridal table was centered with the traditional three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was surrounded with greenery and flowers, and lighted tapers were placed at either end of the table.

Hostesses for the reception were Miss Ruth Hill and Mrs. Roy Deckert.

When the couple left for their wedding trip to Quebec, Canada, the new Mrs. Wilson was wearing a navy blue nylon dress trimmed in white. She wore white accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is associated with The Belt Corp. in Orient and the bridegroom is associated with his father in farming. The couple will make their home in Scioto Township.

Seimer-Wilson Wedding
Read In Lutheran Church

Rites Performed
At 7:30 P.M.

Miss Irene May Seimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer F. Seimer of Circleville Route 4, became the bride of Earl E. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coit H. Wilson of Ashville Route 2, in the Trinity Lutheran church, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

Baskets of gladiolus, fern and huckleberry, and seven-branched candelabra, provided the background for the double ring ceremony, which was read by the Rev. George Troutman.

For her marriage the bride wore a ballerina length gown of white imported chantilly lace over pleated nylon net and bridal satin. The fitted basque bodice was designed with a sheer yoke appliqued with satin flowers and strewn with iridescent paillettes, and short sleeves. She wore matching lace mitts. The extremely bouffant skirt cascaded over a crinoline petticoat. Her ballerina length veil of imported silk English illusion was caught to a Juliet cap of matching lace and illusion, enhanced with wheat-shaped pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and wore pearl earrings, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Eugene B. Bach of Washington C.H., sister of the bride, served as matron-of-honor. Her gown was of fuchsia silk starched organza, made with shoulder framing fishu-draped, portrait neckline and a fitted bodice. The full gored skirt was worn over a matching taffeta slip. She wore matching nylon tulle mitts and a pearl necklace, which was the gift of the bride.

Her headband was of yellow roses and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Harold F. Wilson, of Commercial Point, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were George Seimer and Franklin Seimer, brothers of the bride.

Miss Jeannette Wenrich offered a program of nuptial organ music and Miss Ruth Troutman sang, "Thru The Years," "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a gray floral print dress with which she combined black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Wilson wore a navy blue lace and crepe dress with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Pickaway Arms for approximately 60 guests. The bridal table was centered with the traditional three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was surrounded with greenery and flowers, and a d lighted tapers were placed at either end of the table.

Hostesses for the reception were Miss Ruth Hill and Mrs. Roy Deckert.

When the couple left for their wedding trip to Quebec, Canada, the new Mrs. Wilson was wearing a navy blue nylon dress trimmed in white. She wore white accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is associated with The Belt Corp. in Orient and the bridegroom is associated with his father in farming. The couple will make their home in Scioto Township.

NEW YORK—The reason women get more things done than men is that they know better how to make a fuel of themselves.

There is no fuel like an old fuel, and the oldest and best fuel isn't wood, coal or oil. It is anger—plain old inner anger.

That is why men are secretly afraid of women—because of the power of anger they have. Few obstacles can stand before the flaming energy of a wrathful lady at peak cry.

A wise man, however, can ex-

Woman Accomplishes More Things Because She Makes Fuel Of Self

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—The reason women get more things done than men is that they know better how to make a fuel of themselves.

There is no fuel like an old fuel, and the oldest and best fuel isn't wood, coal or oil. It is anger—plain old inner anger.

Notice how a woman operates. If she has a distasteful job to do, the first thing she does is get all steamed up about it. Let us suppose the chore her conscience tells her she should be doing her semi-annual housecleaning.

A man faced with this task says, "I ought to tidy up this joint, and I will, one of these days, but I feel awful tired to-day." And he doesn't get around to shoveling out the debris until it threatens to smother him.

But a woman says, "I hate the way this place looks." She is angry at it, the anger gives her energy, and soon the dust and furniture are flying. By the time her anger is worn out, she can collapse on a spick - and - span couch in a house that is shiny-bright.

That is why men are secretly afraid of women—because of the power of anger they have. Few obstacles can stand before the flaming energy of a wrathful lady at peak cry.

A wise man, however, can exercise some influence over a woman if he cunningly learns to channel her ire in the right direction. Instead of coaxing her to do something he wants, he might find it better to make her so mad she can't help doing it.

A friend of mine worked this ruse successfully in getting his wife to pack her suitcase in time to catch a train for their vacation.

He pulled out his watch and pointed at it. She dawdled. He pleaded. She dawdled. He begged. She yawned. Finally, he picked up one of her favorite dresses and said:

"Well, I forbid you to take this along. It makes you look like Queen Victoria on a picnic."

"Oh, it does!" she snarled. "I'll wear what I want to, smarty!"

In a tempestuous burst of energy, she packed the suitcase, snapped it shut. They caught the train.

That is sound psychology, up to a point. Of course some wives, when they get mad, just go into another room and lock the door. No rule works with all of them. And, of course, it usually works the other way. A woman uses her anger to whammy a man into obeying her whim. Many a fellow is prodded into success in life only because of the long slow burn of his wife over the fact the husband next door is getting ahead faster. Her wrath feeds his will, and he rises in the world on borrowed fuel.

There is another inner fuel, as old as anger. It is called fear. Anger is a fighting fuel, fear is the fuel for running away. You need both to live.

It seems to me that women keep these two fuels in better balance than men. They are less likely to be overwhelmed by either. They know better when to be angrily brave, when to be cautiously afraid.

But, man or woman, nobody ever became a star in the human race until he learned how to make the right kind of fuel of himself.

Steele Named Jaycee Director

Bob Steele of North Pickaway street was elected to the board of directors in Circleville's Junior Chamber of Commerce Thursday night.

Steele was named to the post to replace Paul Campbell, who moved recently to Toledo.

During Thursday's session, Joe Bell gave a report of his trip to Oregon in the national Jaycee golf tournament, and it was announced the state Jaycee meeting will be held Sept. 14 and 15 in Columbus.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

"How can I earn some money this summer?" "All my friends have vacation jobs and I'd like to get one, too!"—That was the refrain of many letters to this column from high schoolers at the beginning of the Summer. Remember?

Now comes the aftermath. Comments from people who have employed high school and college girls and boys during the Summer.

Not all of them are as grim as the ones printed below. There are some exceptions—good ones. But if you want to know how to keep a job when you have one, now or later in life, lend an ear to their wails and pleas:

"School girls we hired this Summer proved to be sloppy and unreliable," writes one.

"Some of our part-time 'teen girls were uncooperative. They seemed to think work was something for older people to do, and they made no pretense of doing anything that they didn't want to do. Another time, I'd rather hire older women, if possible. They need the money and are more willing to work for it." . . . from another employer.

"My experience with college girls in jobs this Summer was disillusioning. They were noisy, ill-mannered, sang, whistled and chewed gum constantly in the office."

"I don't like to do that!" was often their reply to work instructions. . . . as if everybody 'likes' all the work they do to earn a salary or a living!"

Another sums it up like this: "They had no attitude of giving a sincere, honest measure of work for the money they received. The main idea seemed to be to grab the cash and let the work fall where it may."

How about it, high schoolers? Would you want to hire people like that if you were an employer?

Chinese Red Denounces Dad

HONG KONG.—A university student who denounced his father to the Reds was among 38 recently-admitted members of the Chinese Communist Party, the Hankow Red newspaper Chang Chiang Daily reports.

National Knothole Tournery Underway

CINCINNATI, Aug. 22.—Base ball-crazy kids from five states prepared to troop out to fields throughout this city Friday as the National Knothole Tournament got underway.

Thirty-eight teams from Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, West Virginia and Tennessee are entered in the competition. Each team is champion of its own knothole league.

Play is divided into three sections: Class A for 13 to 15-year-old boys; Class B for those 11 to 13; and Class C for the mighty mites of 8 to 11.

million fund and access to several others.

Owen Lattimore had a travel and research grant from the Social Science Research Council which received more than $6 million from the Carnegie, Rockefeller, Rosenwald, Russell Sage and other Foundations.

It is possible to trace in the histories of some of the most notorious leftists in this country through the grants given them by the Foundations, as for instance, Hanns Eisler, who was a known Communist before the Rockefeller Foundation aided him.

One of the most puzzling of all Foundations is the Guggenheim, set up by United States Senator Simon Guggenheim, a Republican and conservative. It is startling to note how many Communists and leftists have received grants from this particular Foundation, running between $2,500 and $3,000.

It would be unwise and not beneficial to abolish the Foundations. Many of them serve excellent purposes. What needs to be investigated is the relationship of the original design of the donor to the expenditures of his money by self-perpetuating boards of trustees, directed by the hired help.

Paul Hoffman has about $25 million a year of Henry Ford's money to spend. What actual control is exercised over that expenditure? Who has the final voice?

Too much money is at stake to leave to the discretion of a few hired men. The public has an interest in the matter, too. They bought the flippers which made it possible to establish this Foundation.

They want to be sure that it serves America.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

Budget-minded food shoppers noted higher price tags for butter, eggs and pork chops in many parts of the nation this week. But they found good buys in seafood and fresh produce.

Egg prices continued their upward climb, with one big nationwide chain tacking on increases which ranged up to four cents a dozen for the large top-grade variety in some cities.

Thrift-minded housewives again turned to pullet eggs which still offer the best value on a pounds-per-dollar basis.

There's good and bad news for pork eaters this week. Prices of center cut pork chops are up as much as 12 cents a pound in some cities—down a penny or two in others.

Weekend specials in seafood are planned in many parts of the country. Whiting, lobster, a salmon, shrimp, scallops and frozen swordfish are among the varieties described by market sources as attractively priced.

FRICASSEE fowl, frying chickens and roast duck are also being promoted as among the week's best buys, along with cheddar cheese, picnic hams, ground beef, smoked pork butts and spare-ribs.

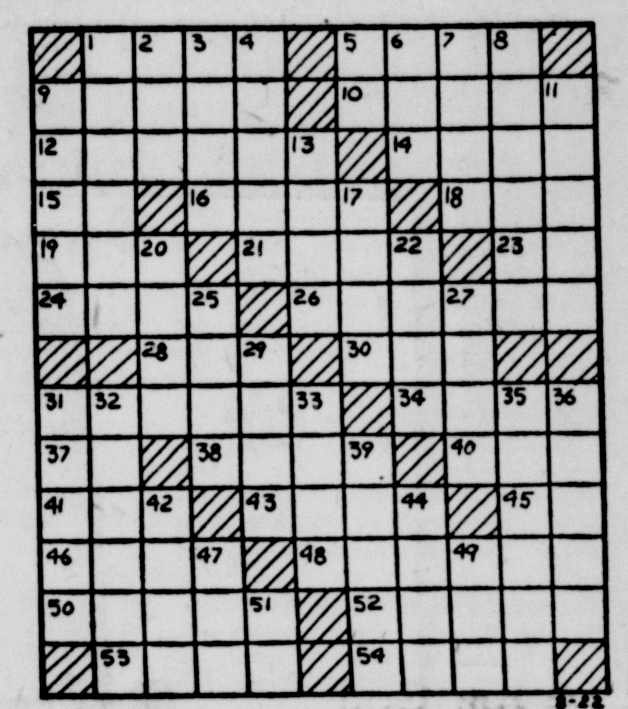

Prices of sirloin steaks and rib roasts of beef are generally unchanged from last week or a shade higher.

On the produce counter, snap beans, beets, cabbage, topped carrots, sweet corn, cucumbers and egg plant are listed by Department of Agriculture market specialists as plentiful and cheap, along with mushrooms, pears, peppers, yellow squash, tomatoes, peaches and potatoes.

Higher in price this week are lettuce, blueberries and spinach.

77 Percent Of Cases Here 'Delinquent'

Big Advances Being Made In Juvenile Study

Guest speaker Thursday during a meeting of Circleville Rotary Club in the Elks home was John R. Ferguson, chief of juvenile research and classification of the State Welfare Department.

Ferguson, who has general direction of the Girls' Industrial School in Delaware and the Boys' Industrial School near Lancaster, said few persons realize the seriousness of the juvenile delinquency problem.

Last year, Ferguson said, of the 45,000 youngsters under the age of 18 years who came into the courts, 25,000 were delinquents.

Striking closer to home, Ferguson said 77 out of 100 juvenile cases in Pickaway County were delinquents.

HE SAID that, because delinquency does not strike in every home, most persons do not know what it actually means, and people need to become better acquainted with the seriousness of the problem.

The majority of persons think of delinquents as something stemming from broken homes, he added. However, records show more delinquent youngsters come from homes which were not broken.

Actually, the building of playgrounds and recreational facilities does not aid the wayward youngster as much as one would like to believe. For, although playgrounds do some good, the delinquent youngster is usually the first either not to participate or to be excluded from activities because of his actions.

Ferguson said there is no single cause of delinquency. All studies and research indicate the problems arise out of early relationships with parents or brothers and sisters.

In the matter of treatment, he said the great strides made in the last few years in psychiatry and psychology spell advances in treatment of delinquency.

The former methods of physical correction have not brought about the desired effects. Although it is cheaper to pen the youngsters up and hope for a miracle, he said, it doesn't happen that way because you can't beat a sense of social responsibility into young people.

FERGUSON said his bureau serves about 5,000 youngsters a year in various programs, and he reported between 60 and 70 percent success in handling those cases.

In closing, Ferguson said a new building is being completed where each juvenile delinquent will be sent by the courts to an eight to 10-week period of observation.

Their particular case will be studied and the child will be sent to the institution where the training will most benefit him.

Joe Wilson was accepted into the group as a new member during Thursday's session.

Guests were Jack Dunnick of Columbus and Dudley Mills of Walled Lake, Mich., both former residents of Circleville; William Nolan of Chillicothe, S. A. Derry of St. Mathews, Ky., John Holland of Shelbyville, Ky., Henry Loomis of Columbus, Delbert Nixon of Lancaster, and Thurman A. Marse of Gallipolis.
